BIOGRAPHY

To her friends she is a confidant and mentor; to her clients, an outstanding creative talent; to her community, an activist and generous contributor to local causes. From any point of view, Erin Denny is all about people.

Erin is a lifelong resident of Woodland, California, where she found her career path at age 11 when she served as a model for her godmother. Under the direction of a Vidal Sassoon team member, Erin picked up the technique for the Dorothy Hamill wedge cut. From that point on, Erin knew where she was going, and throughout her 25-year career, she has never lost her focus. Erin's pursuit of excellence in her field has led her to study and explore new techniques under the direction of such legendary artists as Yosh Toya, Ole Henriksen and Daniel Galvin.

Today, Erin's home base is Sinor Salon in Woodland, where she has worked with Paul Sinor, national educator for Aquage, and a group of gifted independent stylists for almost ten years. While practicing her craft is a reward in itself, the best part, from Erin's point of view, is seeing the look on a client's face following a transforming session in the artist's chair. Erin states simply: "I love helping people feel good about themselves."

Upon leaving her "day job," Erin moves easily into a world of glitter and glamour, commuting regularly to New York, where she performs as a dynamic platform artist. An experienced artistic design team member who has worked with ISO, Scruples, and AG, Erin recently joined the team at Matrix.

Her work as lead stylist and makeup artist for television and film productions has opened the door to exciting new opportunities for Erin, such as when Reese Williams, director of the movie Bench Warmers, cast her in that film in the role of Tracy. Erin also interviews local celebrities and reports on special events as a theater and entertainment writer and photographer covering San Francisco and the Bay Area for ACTION! Magazine.

Erin's commitment to her community is quietly evident as she channels her seemingly boundless energy into volunteer efforts with organizations such as the Make-a-Wish Foundation, the Girl Scouts, and local school groups. With her upbeat attitude and generous spirit, Erin makes a difference in many ways.

I have had the pleasure to work with Erin Denny on many of the projects that I have been involved with. Erin has an incredible grasp for what it takes to make someone look good in front of the camera. Her hair styling abilities are amazing! Erin knows and can capture the style and coloring necessary to portray a character from any era. She needs little to no direction...just give her an idea of what you are looking for, and she does it! Erin looks at the whole picture, what looks good on the actor/actress; what the Director is trying to achieve; how it will look with the lighting; and finally...how it will be received by the audience. Erin is "Star Quality" without having a "Star Ego" to get in the way. She is ambitious, creative, enthusiastic and the consummate professional. Erin is the type of hair stylist and makeup artist that ANY Director would love to have on the set.
